Later there were whistle saintes from the steamer Sagamore, John Pierce's yacht Sapphire and August Belmont's yacht, the Scoat, which brought former Sension David B. Hill, from Hyde Park. After the ceremony all crowded up eagerly to shake the candidate's hand and to congratulate him on his speech. The reception was continued on the veranda until after 4 o'clock, when the company broke up and the visitors returned to their boats and trains.

CLARK'S ADDRESS.

Predicts Democratic Success. Letter of Notification.

Letter of Notification.

(By Associated Press.)

ESOPUS, August 10.—Judge Parker's tamily were escorted to the summerhouse on the lawn by National Chairman Meyer. Mr. Taggart and Mr. Meyer, accompanied by Representative Clark chairman of the Notification Committee, then secorted Judge Parker from the house to the stand. The candidate was greeted with cheers. There was no wait in the ceremonies, As soon as the little party reached the stand Representative Clark began his address. He said:

"Judge Parker: The most momentous political performance known among men the quadrennial election of an American President. The supreme executive power of $0.00,000 free people changes ananas with simplest ceremony and most perfect order. While the contest for votes is waged with earnestness and enthusiasm—sometimes with much heat and bitterness—the ready acceptance of the result by the defeated is the surest augury of the perpetuity of our institutions.

"Presidents come and Presidents go, but the great republic—freighted with the hopes of the human race for liberty—goes on forever.

Reunited Party.

Reunited Party.

Reunited Party.

"All history proves that a government bottomed on popular suffrage is a government by party Experience shows that he serves his party best who serves, his country best. The names most fondly cherished are those of men who devote their time, their energies, their talents, their fortunes and their lives to the promotion of the public weal. Stronger incentive to high and patriotic endeavor no man hath than the hope to stand through all the ages in that goodly company.
"Out of the musterly debates and profound deliberations of the St. Louis convention emerged a reunited party, which goes forth conquering and to conquer. The flower of the Democracy assembled there to consult on the state of the country and to take measures for restoring the government. To the principles enunciated

there to consult on the state of the courtery and to take measures for restoring the government to the principles enunciated by the fathers, from which it has drifted far in these latter days.

*Every phase of Democratic opinion was represented by brave, honest and able champions in that great conclave of free and patriotic men.

Not Cut and Dried.

"The St. Louis convention carried out no cut and dried programme. Its delegates were not mere automatons or mariemettes waving and talking when the strings were pulled by one man. Speech and acten were absolutely free and the great debates which took place there will constitute part of the permanent political literature of the country. No effort was made to gag or bridle any one. If a delegate had a pet idea which he was anxious to exploit he was given an adequate and respectful hearing before either the Platform Committee or the entire convention. Every man had his say. To mone was opportunity denied Out of it all grew such unity as encourages lovers of liberty and of pure government everywhere.

"We enter upon this campaign with the strength which grows out of the union of a mighty party, with the courage that emanates from a righteous cause, with the confidence of men animated by noble purposes and lofty patriotism.

"The principles of Demecracy are grounded in eternal truth. As formulated by the Father of Demecracy they are not for a day, but for all time, and are as applicable in this hour as when he procaimed them in lift first haugural address which has become a classic. The necessity of putting them into practice is as pressing now as it was then. To once more make them the basis of our off the land.

Democratic Principles.

"To serve the whole American people, without decrimination, faithfully and well; to distribute the blessings of the Federal government impartially among all our clitzens; to lighten the burdens of government by reducing taxation to the minimum and by rigid economy in the public service; to administer the powers conferred by the Constitution justly, wisely, fearlessly, vigorously and patriotically, without diminution and without usurpation; to maintain freedom of thought, freedom of speech and freedom of the press; to promote the sacred cause of human liberty everywhere by the wholesomeness of our example; to vindicate and glorify the theory and practice of representative government; it secure its blessings to our-riosterity for all time-these always have been, are and forever must be the alms and purposes of Democratic. These alms and purposes have been carefully, clearly and comprehensively set forth in the declaration of principles which was unanimously reported to the St. Louis convention in July last by the Platform Committee after more than sixteen hours spent in its consideration, in which every great live issue is frankly, boldly and fully discussed, and which was unanimously and enthusiastically adopted by that convention, composed of delegates which every great live issue is frankly, boldly and fully discussed, and which was unanimously and enthusiastically adopted by that convention, composed of delegates from every constituency under our flag.

"There was a splendid array of Presidential candidates before the St. Louis convention, supported by loyal friends and ardent admirers. An unusually large number of men were placed in nomination for the greatly coveted honor. You were chosen with such entuusiasm as foretells success. Having, on the only ballet, received the two-thirds majority indispensable by Bemocratic ususe, your nomination was made unanimous with the heartiest approval-of your flustrious competitors. "Absolute acquiescence in the decisions of the majority, the vital principle of republics," has ever been a cardinal tenet of Democracy; and he zigns of the times indicate that you will be supported at the polls by the Democratic hests with the same unanimity with waich you were nominated.

Chairman Clark was enthusiastically cheered throughout his address, and at its close was accorded an ovation, which was merged into the reception extended to Judge Parker. During the speaking rain began to fall fitfully, and many umbrellas were raised. Realizing that the ceremonies might be therfered with. Representative Clark left out a portion of his speech as originally prepared.

Judge Parker, with bared head, stood on the platform throughout the speech with utter disregard of the rain, which dampened him, from head to foot and spotted his linen. His composure was unruffled, and he amiled with the spectators at the withleisms with which Mr. Clark interspersed his address. Mr. Clark concluded at 216, and then presented to Judge Parker the formal notification, signed by the chairman and other members of the committee.

Flags were frantleally waved at the close of Mr. Clark's speech, the spectators cheered, and it was a full minute before Judge Parker was permitted to speak.

Before beginning his address of acceptance, Judge Parker advised the crowd to get under the trees out of the rain. "We don't mind the wet," was the spontaneous reply. Judge Parker began his address at 2:18 P. M.

Colonel John S. Cuningham, of North Carolina, was in the city last night. Colonel Cuningham spent a day with Judge Alton B. Parker a short time ago. He expressed himself as being much pleased was contined to the Hudson, says Colonel Cuningham, and takes much interest in his farm. He raises cattle and horses, and grain and the grasses. He is a most affable gentieman, and knows when to speak and when not to speak, as was evidenced by his telegram to the St. Louis convention. Colonel Cuningham was a delegate to the St. Louis convention. He was a strong advocate of Judge Parker's nomination, and considers him one of the ablest and most conservative men in the United States.

session of the public generally: When session of the public generally; when Mr. Roosevelt set about to prepare his speech of acceptance of the nomination, many of the foremost men in the Republican party advised him to embody in it a declaration to the effect that if chosen to the presidency he would not attempt to secure another term. He refused positively, and when the pressure was intively, and when the pressure was creased, he became all the more de creased, he became all the more de-termined in his opposition to such a declaration, and there was no allusion to the subject in the speech. It is morally certain that if Mr. Roosevelt is elected he will at once begin laying plans to capture the nomination for another term. He loves to smash precedents, and nothing would be dearer to his heart than to "rough ride" through this venerable not united as to the field on which the

of the Democratic national campaign are not united as to the field on which the principal fighting is to take place. Chairman Taggart is set upon making a chief effort to capture Indiana. He has never failed to carry the State in a national election when he was in charge of the campaign. He does not want any relaxation of efforts to carry the doubtful Easiern States or the silver States of the Transmississippi country because of the Transmississippi country because of the fight he wishes to wage in Indiana, but he wants the fight to be carried along in all three sections.

Upon the other hand, it is understood that the Democratic National Executive Countities, or a majority of it, is inclined to make New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Delaware and West Virginia the battleground in the East, and neveral of the sage-brush States the seene of the fighting in the West. If the States included in the territory marked out were to go Democratic, Indiana would not be needed to elect Parker and Davis. But Taggart is confident of being able to carry his State. It is probable that he will have his way and be given an opportunity to make good his premises of victory for the Democrats in ricoslerdom.

The brute attacked Mrs. Whitehurst, who defended herself, but the negro choked her until she bled at the nose and mouth. In the grantime the woman stopping at the cottage ran from the house and gave the alarm at the life-saving station, a short distance away. The surfmen turned out and the word was passed up the coast. A large number of life-savers gathered at the scene, but the negro had taken fright and escaped. It was useless to pursue at night on account of the wild country, but the chase was taken up this morning, many citizens joining the posse.

The negro, Chaffee, was recently discharged from one of the fisheries, and had been hanging around the vicinity. Mrs. Whitehurst is ill as the result of her terrible experience.
